The greatest improvement in Corsets during the past twenty years is the use of Coraline in the place of horn or whalebone. It is used in all of Dr. Warner's Corsets and in no others.

The advantages of Coraline over horn or whalebone are that it does not become set like whalebone, and it is more flexible and more durable.

Dr. Warner's Coraline Corsets are made in twenty-four different styles, fitting every variety of figures-thin, medium, stout, long waists and short waists. Sold everywhere.

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST 726 Samson St., Philadelphia, Pa.

frost of May 17th I was looking over some loose papers when I found an old writing pad cover with this memorandum on it: "Write for Vick an article on Combating the Weather." Probably a more careful attempt at expressing what I was aiming at would have resulted in my writing "Flanking the Weather;" but expressed either way the words comed a mere mockery, in 'view of the fact that the weather had just kno ked me out of several hundred dollars, and I was powerless to prevent it.

Flanking The Weather.

In spite, however, of this discouraging fact there are many ways of mitigatand combating the eccentricities of the weather that are worth considering. There are ways of fighting late spring frosts but they are not always practicable. The most efficacious is seeking an elevated site which abruptly descends to lower ground, affording atmospheric drainage, the colder air seeking the lowor ground. An illustration of the value of elevation was revealed on the writer's place in the case of the frost alluded to. I have a peach orchard occupying a sidehill where the difference of elevation between the highest and the lowest is about the same as the height of the trees. On the highest rows very little injury was done, but on the lowest no fruit at all was left. The same is true of cherries and other tree fruits. I had the curiosity to climb a pear tree before the frost was melted and found that at 22 feet from the ground there was only a trace while at the bottom both foliage and fruit were frozen stiff. The foliage of hickory trees was seared to a height corresponding in a measure to the eleva tion of the ground.-Vick's Magazine for

Not only should the shutters and windows be closed, but the blinds must be lowered to exclude every ray of light, and the doors locked to prevent the running in and out of the children, who thus admit waves of heated air. Perhaps it would be neither wise nor practicable to hermetically seal all the rooms of a house, but one room, at least, can be so treated—the parlor, and also the dining-room between meals; the room selected should be closed early in the morning while the air has some freshness, and before the sun strikes the windows; then it should not be opened intil late in the afternoon.

To Keep the Baby Well.

A baby in this country is under the best conditions possible to resist the effects of the heat, writes Elizabeth R. Scovil, in The Ladies Home Journal. Yet the mother should be always prepared for emergencies. Before leaving them she should procure a few powders of pepsin and bismuth, or any simple for its use. She should take with her, alsso, a bottle of lime-water and another of pau-creatin, or one of the other preparations for peptonizing mild. The purity of milk is always open to question, because it absorbs germs so readily. That used for a baby should be sterilized to make it perfectly safe. This can be done in the morning and evening by putting the milk, fresh from the cow, in bottles of a small size to hold enough for one meal each. Place these in a saucepan filled with cold water and set it on the stove where it will heat gradually.

BEFORE the adoption of the McKinley bill, the southerners fiercely opposed that part which increased the duty on the sheet iron bands which are used to hoop cotton bales. At that time these bands or hoops were imported from England at $1.20 a bundle, and it was argued that the increased duty would simply advance the cost to the consumer, because the "tariff is a tax, you know." But the bill became a law, and American manufacturers at once commenced to make these cotton ties, and, being assured of the home market, and by the use of improved machinery and new processes, they are supplying the demands with steel ties which are much more valuable than the English imported article. And the price of each bundle is only $1.10. Of course this burts the English manufacturer, for his market is rone, and the largest English factory iss been compelled to go out of business. a the mean time, the money that was ermerly shipped to London to pay for tton ties stays in this country to pay er beef, pork, wheat, cloths and sugar at 20 pounds for one dollar.
